Budget cuts allocated to social services

In light of the ongoing global economic recession, the Department for Family Care and Social Protection has taken a decision to cut the budget allocated to social services for users of Centers for Social Work. This reduction affects critical services such as shelters for victims of violence, child allowances, and social benefits for unemployed families. Consequently, this decision directly exacerbates poverty and hunger among the population that relies on these vital social services.

Climate change affects community gardens' food production

Due to climate change, there are shortages of water and certain agricultural products, and community gardens have not been able to grow some of the products that the neighbors need the most.
